Federal Deficit Predicted For 3 More Years

Tax On Middle Income Group Needs Hike, Committee Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 — A Joint Economic Committee report warned today that, even without a "major war" before mid-1956, the nation faces deficits for three years and should boost taxes on middle-income groups.

The report issued by the staff under Chairman O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., cautioned that anti-inflation curbs will prove inadequate unless 1952 military appropriations are "cut substantially."

It emphasized that even the administration's $10 billion tax increase program would fail to avert a deficit in 1953, although it would probably "just balance" the budget for fiscal 1952.

The report was issued as the Senate Finance Committee began redrafting the $7.2 billion House-approved tax bill. Best indications are that the Senate committee will trim the measure further, perhaps to $6 billion.

O'MAHONEY TOLD a news conference he is still advocating a pay-as-you-go approach "as far as possible" to meet the cost of rearmament. He said that "if we go into deficit financing we invite inflation to return—that is the greatest threat to the country."

While the staff report paid tribute to the pay-as-you-go principle, it recognized that increased revenues must be found to make it possible.

It said: "Clearly, most of these would have to come from individuals in the $3,000 to $10,000 income brackets. In this middle range of incomes, tax rates could be increased further."

The report held that it is evident federal budget expenditures may hit a peak of $87 billion in fiscal 1953, then drop to about $84 billion in fiscal 1954, $72 billion in fiscal 1955 and stabilize at about $60 billion in fiscal 1956.

It stressed that estimated revenues could not meet these expenditures until after 1954, and said "this implies that the budget would show a deficit for the three fiscal years 1952 through 1954, after which it could be balanced."

One of the assumptions of the report was that "there will be no major war prior to June 30, 1956."

Army Plans No Change

West Point Chief Outlines Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Maj. Gen. F. A. Irving, superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, indicated today that the honor system and football both will be retained without change despite the dismissal of 90 cadets for cheating.

Irving was asked in an interview whether any consideration would be given to a proctor system as a substitute for the honor system. He replied flatly: "No."

Irving scotched the idea that a desire for athletic superiority motivated the cheating scandal. He said the ratio of athletes to non-athletes in the expelled group is 50-50.

Reports from West Point indicated, however, that most of the varsity football team was included.

The general said the academy feels it "can have football and still detect dishonesty and encourage honesty." He said that "football players as well as other students have been able in the past to meet the standards of both honesty and scholarship."

Commenting on some cadet contentions that widespread cribbing has been in progress during the last four or five years, Irving said the academy has "no conclusive evidence," and added:

"I do not think that organized widespread violations could have long continued without detection."

The superintendent explained that every applicant to West Point is given a written and oral indoctrination in the honor system so that no doubt is left about its purpose.

Congress To Get Special Message

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—The White House said today that President Truman is preparing a special message to Congress on his exchange of messages with Russia's chief of state.

The chief executive reportedly will ask that an intensive congressional effort be made toward persuading the Soviet Union to lift the Iron Curtain and allow a free flow of ideas and information between East and West.

Disconcerting, But Reassuring

BOSTON, Aug. 13—More than one patient coming out of anesthesia in Peter Ben Brigham hospital has been startled to hear the loud chant, "Calling Gabriel, Calling Gabriel."

The call is not for the angel, but for the hospital's barber, Gabriel Spagnuolo, over the loud speaker system.

CONSTABLE Frederick Crost is photographed while on traffic duty on a London thoroughfare. He is believed to be city's only bearded bobby.

4 Drivers Arrested

Drunkeness Cited; Hearings Expected

Four men have been bound to Pickaway County grand jury on accusations of drunken driving following arrest last weekend.

Two of the men were arrested for driving while drunk as the result of accidents, one of which involved a broken city fire hydrant.

Eddie Rutter, 52, of 373 Weldon avenue, was held on $500 bond in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller following an accident early Sunday on North Pickaway street.

Rutter's auto plunged out of control at about 2 a. m. Sunday as he drove north on Pickaway street, travelled on the berm for about 30 feet and struck a city fire hydrant, breaking it off.

INJURED in the crash were Celia Rutter, 53, who suffered a fractured left wrist; and Luella Davis, 29, who suffered a puncture wound of her right arm.

Water Manager Ervin Leist said only a small amount of water was lost in the accident and that the barrel of the hydrant will have to be welded back in place, probably at a cost of about $40. Rutter was arrested by Officers Orville Caldwell and John White.

Richard Burris, 21, of Ashville, was held on $300 bond in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root following an accident on Route 316 Saturday night.

Burris suffered a minor arm injury in the accident when he lost control of his car on a curve. He was arrested by Deputy James Diltz.

Elba McCollister, 26, of Portsmouth, was placed on $1,000 bond in the magistrate court also on an accusation of drunken driving.

McCOLLISTER was arrested on Route 22 by Deputy Jack Dewey.

Leone H. Warren, 44, of Columbus, was placed on $500 bond in the court of Mayor Miller on a similar accusation. He was arrested on South Pickaway street Sunday by Officer Carl Thompson.

All four men are expected to have hearings in Pickaway County common pleas court later this week on bills of information.

Niagara Falls Trip Planned

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 13—Leslie Sander, 37-year-old interior decorator from New York City, said today he is determined to attempt a trip over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel on Aug. 25.

Sander said the recent fate of stuntman "Red" Hill, dashed to death when he went over the falls in a barrel made of rubber tires, will not stop him from making his own barrel-trip. Nor, he said, does he think Canadian police will be able to stop him, as they have announced.

Stephen Early's Funeral Is Set

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 — Funeral services for Stephen T. Early, President Roosevelt's press secretary and former deputy defense secretary, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Washington Cathedral.

Early, a former Washington newspaperman who also served briefly as press secretary to Mr. Truman, died Saturday of a heart attack at the age of 61.

UN 'Adjustment' Offers Fail To Budge Communists

MEAT GOING UP, TOO?

5 To 8 Pct. Living Cost Hike Seen In Next Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Administrators of the nation's new economies controls law believe it may force retail meat prices up by five to 10 percent in the next six months.

They also declare that a 11 price increases granted under the law's so-called Capehart amendment must be passed along to consumers, perhaps upping the cost-of-living five to eight percent in the next 12 months.

In "background" conferences with newsmen, top stabilization officials made these other points:

1—A major cutback in defense production undoubtedly will bring on a business recession.

2—They will move as quickly as possible to control rents in 200 military areas where they charge "outrageous" rents are being collected from servicemen and defense workers for "chicken coops and tumble-down shacks."

3—WORKERS in two major industries are now negotiating for wage increases 10 percent above ceiling.

4—An unidentified auto maker—not one of the "big three"—has applied for a 9.34 percent increase in ceiling prices. Chrysler and Ford previously petitioned the Office of Price Stabilization for increases of about 10 percent.

5—It is theoretically possible under the new controls law that over-ceiling prices paid for gray market materials could be included as cost increases under the Capehart amendment and be passed along to the public in higher prices.

6—One top official has suggested that in some cases the government stop stock-piling scarce strategic materials to avoid "skyrocketing" prices on the world market where U. S. price controls cannot be applied.

7—The government "apparently" will go ahead with a controversial synthetic wool program under which companies will receive tax benefits for necessary plant expansion.

8—Top stabilization officials fear that they cannot hold copper prices at present levels "very long" but say "give us another two years and we won't worry about copper because we'll have enough aluminum as a substitute."

9—The "personal" recommendation of one top-level stabilization official is that price and wage controls be administered as "tough as possible." He would grant "no more price increases than are absolutely justified; hold wages as tight as we can; demand strict enforcement of present curbs; and fight for a better controls law."

10—The Wage Stabilization Board's new policy tying wages for millions to the cost-of-living as a "material compromise" of differences between the wage board and Economic Stabilizer Johnston. Johnston reportedly agrees that the government must link wages to living costs.

11—The new controls law can be administered and enforced but prices and wages can only be stabilized on a "higher plateau" than they already have reached.

Gangster's Tie To Steel Empire Eyed By Probers

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Joseph A. Sisto, chairman of the board of the Barium Steel Corp., may be called as a witness this week before the Senate Crime Committee in Washington, which is trying to establish whether Ex-Gangster Abner (Longie) Zwillman has a substantial interest in Barium Steel.

Sisto, head of the brokerage firm of J. A. Sisto and Co., is credited with building Barium's empire in steel, now operating some twenty subsidiaries in all parts of the country.

Sisto has had a rather hectic career in the world of finance. In 1938 he was expelled from the New York Stock Exchange, which found him "guilty of conduct and proceedings inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade." He has never been reinstated.

Sisto's firm previously had suffered suspension after it failed in the stock market crash of 1929. At the time Sisto was being described as a friend and financial adviser of Premier Benito Mussolini and the Italian government.

AN ORGANIZER of the Sisto financial corporation, which owns a large block of Barium steel stock, Sisto's financial dealings have been criticized repeatedly in reports of the Securities Exchange Commission.

The Fulbright Senate subcommittee, investigating the RFC "influence ring," condemned a loan of $6.3 million to a Barium subsidiary, the Central Iron and Steel Co., and accused Barium of consistently "milking" its subsidiaries.

The SEC found that as of July, 1946, practically all the assets of Sisto Financial Corp.—in which Zwillman reportedly has a partnership—consisted of shares of Barium steel stock.

Sisto financial at that time had only $750 in cash of total assets of $655,141.04. Of that sum $654,382.87 represented the then market value of 56,291 shares of Barium stock.

Zwillman, object of an intensive search by the crime probers, proved a reluctant witness in his one previous appearance before the Senate committee.

The ex-rum runner freely admitted his history, but stoutly insisted he had been a legitimate businessman for many years.

But he also admitted that he knew most of "the boys" in the underworld—Frank Costello, Frank Erickson, Joe Adonis, the Franchetti of the Capone mob in Chicago, Willie Moretti, and many others.

Zwillman refused to answer most questions put to him, but admitted interests in various business enterprises, including a cigar vending machine company, a washing machine company and others.

General Defends Hard Labor For Army Private

FORT WOOD, Mo., Aug. 13—The commanding general of Fort Leonard Wood today defended his action in the case of an Illinois soldier now serving a year at hard labor for refusing to go out on the rifle range.

Maj. Gen. S. D. Sturgis confirmed that he had overruled a board decision approving a transfer to the medical corps for Pvt. Robert Wingo, 22, of Monmouth, Ill.

Wingo asked for the transfer after he heard a major tell a group of draftees: "Boys, I'm here to make killers out of you, the worst killers possible."

The soldier said he "felt something raise up inside" of him when he heard these words.

Sturgis, replying to a protest by a Nazarene minister of Monmouth, said:

"Who does want to kill? None of these boys do, but that's what the Army is for. The rest of the boys who came in with Wingo are in Korea now."

The Rev. C. K. Sparks claimed that Sturgis disregarded recommendations by two boards and the post chaplain in keeping Wingo in a combat unit.

TRUE TALKS DRAG ON at Kaesong, where chief Communist delegate General Nam Il glances at his wrist watch before entering the conference hall with General Lee Sung Cho. The Reds stubbornly insist on the 38th Parallel as the armistice line which the United Nations would put at the present battle front, north of the parallel.

FALSEHOODS 'CEASELESS'

Ridgway Says Reds Show No Peaceful Intentions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today that Communist forces in Korea have shown "no concrete evidence of honest, peaceful intentions."

The United Nations command, he added, "will now judge Communist intentions not by words, but by performance."

The commander-in-chief of UN forces in Korea solemnly warned against any letdown in preparedness and emphasized that what is done on the home front "bears a direct relation to the number of American boys who will ultimately return alive."

He said the rotation plan is working "exceedingly well" and more than 50,000 Americans have returned to the U. S. "with no loss in combat effectiveness."

HE REPORTED that "mutual confidence and mutual respect" among the various national and military units have produced an "unbeatable battle team" in Korea.

Commenting on problems faced by UN forces when cease-fire talks are underway, Ridgway declared:

"The ceaseless flow of falsehoods, perversion and slanted statements which continue to emanate from Communist-controlled public information media, together with the long record of Communist duplicity, deceit and faithlessness in contractual obligations, have dissolved all doubts in the minds of this command as to Communist objectives."

He added that "our forces know why they fight and their spirits were never higher."

Ridgway was emphatic in his warning that there must be no letdown in the nation's preparedness program. Asked how such a letdown would affect the Korean situation, he said:

"If it occurred, it could gravely impair the fighting effectiveness of United States forces and consequently seriously jeopardize the security of the United Nations command now fighting so gallantly in Korea."

"THIS IS ONLY the material side of the picture. The obverse is the spiritual. Providing the material needs are met, and that of course is essential, there still exists the spiritual needs which are of incalculably greater significance."

"However fine the weapons, however adequate the equipment, neither represents any more strength than the hearts of the men who use them. The hearts of these men will be no stouter nor their courage any higher than the hearts and courage of their kin at home for whom they fight. It is their support, their encouragement which sustains them."

Raft Continues Its Drift Down Mississippi

BELLEVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 13—The raft "Lethargia," with its now rather disheveled crew of two young unmarried couples experimenting in "confined living," drifted languidly past Belleville today on its sociological course to New Orleans.

Skipper Mary Ellen McCrady, 24-year-old Michigan sociologist, said she has made several notes on the experiment so far and has learned that "four people on a raft have a lot of arguments, especially when it comes to important decisions."

"One week one couple will do all the arguing, and next week another couple will take over," she said.

She said she also has observed that its never the same two persons in different weeks, adding that "we take turns."

The group still is determined to reach New Orleans by mid-September to complete the journey which started at New Kensington, Pa., at the highest navigable point on the Allegheny river.

"The strain probably will begin to show when we hit the Mississippi river and go greater distances without seeing anyone," Miss McCrady said. She added that "all are still good friends, and no romances have developed."

Allies Coax Reds, But To No Avail

Buffer Zone Issue Still Stalemated

KAESONG, Aug. 13—An attempt to coax the Reds into a joint map study to work out "adjustments" of the Allied-proposed battle front cease-fire line failed today to pull the Korean armistice talks out of their critical stalemate.

Equally futile was a new United Nations effort to bypass the thorny buffer zone issue temporarily and move on to other questions in the hope of saving the shaky Kaesong conference from collapse.

Wavering peace prospects were kept barely alive, however, when another—and perhaps decisive—meeting was set for Tuesday. The parley has been deadlocked for 13 of its 23 sessions over the issue of where to locate an armistice line.

Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, top UN delegate, spent 38 of the 80 minutes consumed by Monday's meeting in a fresh, exhaustive explanation of the Allied stand for a cease-fire belt conforming to the "military realities."

HE HANDED the Reds a new map showing both the UN and Communist delineations of the present battle positions. And, once more the lean, crisp-spoken American admiral depicted UN air and naval superiority as among the "realities" which must be reckoned with in drawing an armistice line.

But, in a conciliatory move, Joy told the Red delegation the UN is "willing to discuss this proposal jointly on a map with a view to making such adjustments as to be acceptable to both parties."

His delegation, he promised, would "listen attentively to any views you may care to present" on a buffer zone "based on the battle line and the existing overall military situation."

"Have you any adjustments to propose?" the admiral directly asked the five North Korean-Chinese delegates sitting across the conference table from him.

In a statement, prepared and translated in advance and thus further reflecting the inflexibility of the Communist position, Chief Red Negotiator Gen. Nam Il insisted again on what he called a "just and reasonable" truce line astride Parallel 38.

HE BRUSQUELY rejected Joy's bid to go on to the question of an armistice supervision commission or the exchange of war prisoners. The vital buffer zone problem, Nam said, must first be settled before any other subject can be taken up.

Following Sunday's meeting which afforded some dim prospect of cracking the stalemate, Monday's 23rd session of the

Co. I On Deck For 2-Week Stint At Atterbury

Members of Circleville's Co. I were among the 2,500 members of non-divisional units in the Ohio National Guard to begin two weeks of Summer training Monday at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

The greater part of the Ohio group arrived Sunday by troop trains, motor convoys, commercial buses and military planes.

Col. Julius A. Stark of Wooster is in charge of the training program which will include small arms firing, field artillery firing, infantry field maneuvers and tank firing on the ranges.

The major units are the 166th regimental combat team, of which Co. I is a part; the 107th Armored Cavalry, the 212th Medical Battalion, the 3640th MAM Ordnance Company, the 3660th MAM Ordnance Company, the 191st Engineer Combat Company, the 372nd Infantry Battalion, and the 474th Field Artillery Battalion.

conference was described officially as "unproductive."

Nevertheless, the conferees agreed to convene a 24th meeting at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning (8 p. m. Monday EST), which may possibly tell the tale of whether the parley is to be lifted out of the mire of deadlock or finally break down.

Red broadcasts have claimed that the Allies want something more than the ground battlefield as a basis for a demilitarized zone. They have asserted the UN wants a line north of the front which reaches 35 miles inland North Korea above Kansong on the east coast.

When Monday's meeting opened, the bulletin related, Joy made a "reply in detail to five questions" submitted Sunday by Nam. The communique continued:

"AS JOY concluded, Nam, speaking from a previously prepared and translated paper, described the UN command's answer as 'not satisfactory.'"

Brig. Gen. William F. Nuckols, delegation spokesman, told newsmen the admiral's statement answering Nam's questions took 38 minutes. During that time, Nam occasionally glanced at a typewritten paper which was on top of his briefcase before him.

The spokesman said he had the impression the paper contained the prepared statement Nam read after Joy concluded his talk. But he added there were many other papers on the conference table.

Nuckols was unable to say whether Nam had alternate statements prepared—one to reject and the other to accept Joy's answer to his questions.

The Near East— Next Red Victim?

By KINGSBURY SMITH
Europe Manager, International News Service

Editor's Note: Tension is running high in the Near East today and this troubled area lies directly in the path of possible new Soviet expansion. If Russia should move to grab the oil and other natural resources of the Near East, the Arab Nations and Israel are so bitterly divided that any effective local defense would be out of the question. This is the picture of conditions in the invasion-menaced area as obtained by Kingsbury Smith, European general manager of International News Service. He begins his report in the following article, first in a series of six.

ANKARA, Aug. 13—The most potentially dangerous area in the world today is the Near East.

With the question of peace in Korea hanging in the balance, it looms as one of the key regions in which Communist aggressive imperialism might strike next.

For Soviet Russia, it is the soft underbelly of the free world, wide open from Iran to Egypt for a Russian military move if Moscow should decide to risk war with the West.

These are the inescapable conclusions of a survey of conditions in the famed lands of Arabian Nights fantasy.

PRIME MINISTERS, foreign ministers, generals, diplomats and Western intelligence officers told this correspondent from Tehran to Turkey that nothing could stop the Russians from sweeping through the Near East to Africa if the Kremlin gave the go-ahead signal in the near future.

In view of Russia's apparent reluctance to risk war with the Western World over Korea, it is assumed that the Soviet leadership is not planning to run a similar risk immediately in the Near East.

Nevertheless, it is generally felt that the temptation to strike in this area while it remains so weak must be a great one for the Russian rulers, especially if they believe war with the West is inevitable and think, for any reason, that they might now have a chance of victory.

Almost the entire area is a military vacuum through which American Army officers predict the Russians could reach the Suez Canal in little more than two weeks if they decided to move.

Nowhere in the Soviet area is there a region so vulnerable to attack by Russia, where she could gain so much at the expense of so many in the Western World and for so little direct military effort on her part.

For the Near East contains half the oil resources of the world and it constitutes one of its most vitally important strategic areas.

It is one of the perilous points, American diplomats state, that President Truman had in mind when he said in a July 4th speech that even though the Korean war ends, the world faces the danger of military aggression elsewhere.

IT IS A PART of the globe which Secretary of State Dean Acheson had in mind when he warned recently that if the Western World allows itself to be lulled by a peace in Korea, "we will be hit within the next six months to a year with much tougher blows elsewhere."

The people at large in the Near East lack the will, the means and the leadership to resist Russian aggression.

Most of the area is threatened with a reign of political terror by fanatical nationalist groups.

What little stability existed has been rocked by the assassination of King Abdullah of Jordan. One of the most solid pillars of the Arab world, this man sought to exert a moderating influence in the Near East, particularly in connection with Israel.

His murder followed within a few days that of another one of the few more stable Arab leaders, Former Lebanese Premier Riad El Solh.

The latter was mortally shot in Aman, the capital of Jordan, after a visit to the ill-fated king in connection with what was believed to be a plan for trying to strengthen the shaky structure of the Near East.

Turkish Foreign Minister Fuad Koprulu told this correspondent that as a result of Abdullah's death it will henceforth become increasingly difficult to maintain tranquillity in the Near East.

Apart from the internal intrigues, the Arab nations are seething with bitterness approaching hatred against the Western powers, and especially the United States, for supporting establishment of the Jewish state of Israel on the shores of their own holy land.

Some of the more extreme Arab nationalist leaders are threatening to turn to Russia for help to drive the Jews into the sea.

Embittered by Western, and particularly American, support, for the Jewish state, the overwhelming majority of the Arab people have no disposition to die

Circleville Parent-Teacher Association is one of hundreds of PTAs throughout Ohio which has been alerted to the necessity of planning a definite anti-narcotics program in the community.

The alert was sounded by Ohio PTA headquarters and special emphasis is being placed on awareness of detection of dope sources and apprehension of peddlers.

Circleville PTA President Ned Harden has been sent a specially-prepared questionnaire. He and the heads of the other 1,650 PTAs in the state, are being asked to place special emphasis on narcotics education.

Howard E. Hamlin, narcotics chairman for the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers, was a recently appointed a member of Governor Lausche's narcotics enforcement planning committee, and has been instrumental in preparing the questionnaire.

Mrs. Russell C. Bickel, president of the Ohio Congress, is urging each PTA president to present this questionnaire to the local executive board for discussion and study, before filling in the answers in order that it may be fully representative of the situation in that community and serve as a means of coping with the increasing spread of the use of narcotics by teen-agers.

Friendly Challenge

Drive at least two new cars, this time, before you decide to buy—and be sure one of them is a new 1951 Packard!

And why do we issue this challenge? The two best reasons in the world:

- 1 Until you drive a new 1951 Packard, you just don't know what's been happening in the automotive world. That's something you owe yourself!
- 2 The best advertising is "word-of-mouth" advertising. Whether or not you buy a Packard, it's to our advantage to start you talking about the advancements that make Packard the newest new car of the year. That's something we owe ourselves!

P.S. We know from experience that today's most thoughtful buyers will gladly accept this challenge.

New 1951 Packard Patrician '400'—most advanced motor car in America. Car details as shown subject to change without notice.

Some "eye-openers" that await you on your Packard "Challenge Drive":

Top-compression power: New Packard Thunderbolt Engines give you the efficiency of America's highest-compression engines. Plus: service-free simplicity—up to 25% fewer working parts than in engines of comparable power.

Ultramatic Drive—a Packard exclusive that combines (1) the smoothness of no gear-changing during acceleration with (2) the efficiency of no slippage when cruising.

New kind of vision: Packard's new, low-level bonnet lets you see both front fenders from behind the wheel!

New steering magic: Thanks to new ideas in steering design and weight distribution, you can actually maneuver a Packard, in traffic, with as little effort as it takes to turn a door knob!

New kind of ride: Packard's exclusive broad-beam, "self-controlling" suspension system combines gentleness with firm roadability in a way no other ride can equal.

New everything: And all of it is backed by the greatest durability record in all of motordom. Fact: Of all the Packards built, in the last 52 years, over 50% are still in service!

It's more than a car—it's a

POLIO SEASON IS HERE

FROM various sections of the country come reports that polio cases are on the increase. Health authorities say this is typical of the disease, which always grows in incidence during August and continues through September and often into October. Total number of cases is slightly under the figure for this period last year.

Polio continues to be a disease of mystery. It wanders around, breaking out in new places. States which have had previous epidemics often are practically free of the malady later. At the present time the number of cases is less in 25 states, greater in 21, even in two, compared to a year ago. This pattern may be changed in weeks or days.

In spite of long and scientific research, no cure for polio has been discovered so far as sovereign remedies are concerned. It is agreed the disease spreads from person to person. Most of those who contract polio and pass it along to others are not sick enough to know they have the disease.

Certain treatments have been effective after the disease appears, but the only means of prevention are the few rules laid down from the beginning — rest, avoiding undue fatigue, keeping out of the hot sun and away from strange crowds. Also important is calling a doctor at the first sign of fever or stiffness.

TRUMAN'S AGE

IT IS AN interesting fact that if President Truman were reelected, he would be the oldest chief executive ever inaugurated.

On Jan. 20, 1953, Truman will be 68 years and nine months old. William Henry Harrison was a few days over 68 when inaugurated in 1841, and he lived only a few weeks.

Jackson, in his second term, and Buchanan were just under 66. No defeated major party presidential candidate was ever as old as 68 either.

The record on vice-presidents is different. Barkley is now 73 and seems to have quieted down. Charles Curtis was 69 when nominated in 1928. Henry Gassaway Davis, defeated vice presidential candidate in 1904, was 80. The political parties never have paid much heed to the qualifications of the second man on the ticket who may become head man at any time.

Whether voters will hold the age factor against Truman if he runs again remains to be seen.

Male mosquito is a vegetarian, says a scientist. As usual, the female of the species is more deadly than the male.

Victory through air power is an impressive argument. Politicians have won through hot air power time after time.

MARCH OF EVENTS

Cage Game Fix May Bring Federal Action

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Look for President Truman to pick someone out of the State department or a career diplomat to succeed Adm. Alan G. Kirk as ambassador to Communist Russia.

Administration insiders say there is little chance that the President will select a man from private life to take over the job in Moscow, perhaps the most important diplomatic post the United States has to offer.

Best bets now are said to be Charles (Chip) Bohlen, State department Russian expert who is now minister to France, and George Kennan, another Russian expert now on leave from the department.

The President has plenty of time to decide on the new ambassador. Kirk won't retire until autumn and that gives Washington at least two months in which to choose his successor.

● FIXES—The latest outbreak of exposures on basketball game fixing by Illinois and Ohio teams may soon prompt some of our national legislators to enact a federal law to correct the situation.

Such a measure would punish those who attempt to fix amateur or professional sports events, bribe athletes, and punish the athletes who succumb to bribe offers. Additionally, the Justice department is expected to help clean up the mess by asking the National Collegiate Athletic Association to keep its members out of arenas and away from promoters.

The department believes the NCAA should make its member teams

These Days

In all the discussion of the West Point scandal, the emphasis lies on the immediate, on the young men, who are often euphemistically called boys, on the officers, on the parents. Many say, "boys will be boys," which is biologically correct until boys become men with the obligations and responsibilities of men.

Others feel that football players have to do so much practice that they cannot keep up with their work unless they are "assisted." And nothing is being said about the cadets who have not cheated.

The real issue is the nature and purpose of a college, university or other school, and of such special schools as West Point and Annapolis. This issue has, more or less, been dodged by many educators as well as parents, since it has become increasingly popular for young men and women to go to schools of higher education and special training whether they have an aptitude for scholarship or not.

The question then arises whether students attend to broaden their minds and spirits or to make friends or to mark time or to play what has come to be professional or semi-professional sports. When scholarships are given to men and women because of their excellence as students, the reward is in the field to which the universities have been devoted since the founding of Bologna in the Eleventh Century.

The athletic scholarship is a fee paid for special services rendered outside of scholarship. The object is to make money for the school, to attract box office receipts, to advertise the institution. It is strictly a business proposition and those to whom the fees are paid are professional performers—in whole or in part—depending upon the individual and the school.

Sometimes such paid performers are also capable of scholarship; often scholarship is not only foreign but offensive to them. In the latter instance, if they are good enough performers to be of commercial value, they are "assisted" to pass examinations so that they may comply with rules and regulations.

At such a school as West Point, this raises three important issues:

1. Under the honor system, the individual who "assists," the individual who is "assisted," and anyone who knows about it is honor bound to report the fact. West Point is a free school, the tuition, board, lodging, uniforms and other expenses being paid by the taxpayer. Also, the students are soldiers in the Army, drawing pay. They are especially bound by rules and regulations in compliance with which they receive these benefits from the taxpayers.

2. These men are to be our generals of the future upon whom the survival of the nation depends. The United States makes a huge investment in each one of them, not only to be "educated," as you and I might have been at college, but to protect, defend and safeguard the nation and the Constitution. They are men apart, whose word must be inviolate for the safety of the nation. Therefore, the word, honor, must have, for them, a special and emphatic meaning.

3. The standing of a West Point man is not only a matter of personal pride; it is a matter of record, upon which an officer's career may depend. Even now, 48 years after his graduation, the fact that Gen. Douglas MacArthur stood first in his class is significant.

Utah legislature has empowered counties to levy taxes to make rain. If legislators tried that in Kansas they'd get mobbed.

play in their own field houses and stay away from televised sports and the lights of the "gay white way."

● IQ TROUBLE—The Defense department is seeking some way to get rid of its fancy system of dividing recruits equally among the services according to their intelligence ratings. The apportionment is just beginning, but already kinks are developing and it is pretty evident that the system won't work.

Military IQ tests divide recruits into four "mental groups," numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, according to the man's score. A score of 93 per cent rates group 1; 65 per cent rates group 2, etc.

The new system says that each service each month must get eight per cent of its recruits from group 1; 32 per cent from group 2; 39 per cent from group 3, and 21 per cent from group 4.

In the first month of the system (May), the Air Force found that more than half of its volunteers were in group 4—the group supposed to furnish only 21 per cent.

Even though shortages in a higher group can be filled from a lower group to the extent of five per cent, the AF couldn't accept all the volunteers. Recruitment fell 15 per cent below the quota, and the first AF use of the draft became almost certain. The Navy is having similar trouble.

● TENNIS, ANYONE?—Washington observers generally agree that Mobilization Boss Charles E. Wilson, Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Control Chief Michael DiSalle are among the hardest workers in the capital. However, that cannot be said for some of the members of the "second layer" of officialdom in the mobilization-stabilization agencies.

For instance, there is reputed to be one group of young officials who find the presence of a set of public tennis courts outside their office windows just too hard to resist.

So, every pleasant afternoon they knock off work, change into sports clothes and have a few fast sets of tennis. Then, the story goes, they repair to the apartment of one of the players to take showers and freshen up before returning to the press of work at their offices.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
TONTONTO looked down at Tex. The boy moaned and moved his head to one side. Tonto's lips grew thin and there was a white, bloodless line around them. He questioned the circle of angry, looking around faces.

"I'm not the sort of man," he said slowly, "who believes in—"
He stopped, choked. "You're going to have a new boss or a new segundo in just about a minute. Stand hitched, all of you."

He wheeled and walked out of the bunkhouse. He headed directly toward the little cottage where the light glowed like a steady challenge. Tonto could not think clearly, didn't want to at the moment. Frick's action had been like a slap in the face but, more than that, it had been one of needless, arrogant cruelty. Tonto did not see the crew standing in an irregular line before the bunkhouse.

He reached the cottage, bounded up the steps to the porch. He didn't knock, but jerked the door open and strode inside. The front room was dark but a stream of light played through the open door to the kitchen. Frick appeared in the doorway.

"Who's there?"
Tonto didn't answer but strode into the light. Frick tensed, then his muscles relaxed. He saw the anger in Tonto's face and he grinned. He wore a belt and gun, sure sign that he expected trouble of one kind or another. He took a couple of steps backward and placed his fingertips lightly on the table. His right hand hung just below the holster, the fingers spread out a little, checked, remained there.

"Why?" Tonto demanded and Frick knew what he meant.

"I gave an order. He wanted to anger. He got his wish."

"You picked that fight deliberate, Frick. You struck at me through Tex Jonas." Frick's brows moved upward but he said nothing.

"You're a dirty liar," Tonto finished.

Frick's lips snapped shut and a muscle moved in his cheek. "What do you aim to do about it?"

"You're fired," Tonto said. "Pack your roll and hit the trail now—tonight. You've had your chance but you sure finished it today."

Frick laughed, a harsh and rasping sound. "Listen to the little rooster crowing. You can't fire me, Riley. You're not—"

Tonto moved, his fist looping up. Frick dodged, warding off the blow with his left arm. His right hand slashed to the holster and the heavy Colt blurred out. Tonto caught the movement. He used shoulder and chest, a slashing blow to smother the draw and he partially succeeded.

Frick fell back. The gun exploded and the bullet smashed into the far wall. The segundo tumbled in a chair, grabbed wildly to catch himself, went down to his knees. He started to lift the gun, froze. He looked directly into the menacing bore of Tonto's Colt. Frick licked his lips.

"Drop it," Tonto ordered. Very slowly Frick loosened his fingers and his weapon hit the floor. "Get up."

Frick arose. Tonto stepped close and kicked the man's gun under the wood stove across the kitchen. Frick, breathing heavily, watched it skitter from sight. The front door crashed open and a second door Jess Ide said, "Oh, 'in a quiet voice."

"See that his horse is saddled, Jess," Tonto ordered. "He's leaving us." Tonto made a sign with his gun toward the bedroom. "I'll see you get packed."

Frick's eyes locked with Tonto's, then dropped. He shrugged and moved into the bedroom, Tonto following with the lamp. He placed it on a washstand and stood in the doorway while the segundo opened drawers and pulled out his belongings. At last he had his bedroll lashed, a war bag filled. He straightened, waiting.

"Your pay," Tonto said and handed him some bills. Frick accepted the money, stuffed it in his pocket. Tonto jerked his head toward the door. "You've taken too long now."

In the kitchen, Frick stopped, looked toward the stove. "My gun?"

"It'll be sent to Avriilo," Tonto said. "You can pick it up there. The quicker you get out of my sight, Frick, the better off you'll be. Right now it wouldn't take much to get you a pistol whipping."

Frick sneered and opened his mouth. He thought better of it and moved out of the cottage, walking with a slight swagger across the yard toward the corral. Tonto followed close behind him, gun swinging in his hand at his side.

Jess Ide had Frick's horse saddled and ready. The crew stood in a silent circle. There was a slight movement toward Frick as he and Tonto came up but Jess Ide spoke quietly.

Frick strapped on his blanket roll and tied the war bag to the saddle. In a deep silence, he swung up on the stirrup. He looked down on Tonto, then his head turned as he eyed the men before he turned to Tonto again.

"I'll be back some day, Riley." "That's your mistake. Slash S range won't be healthy for you after this."

"My mistake?" Frick echoed. "Mine? No, the mistake was yours when you first came to Avriilo." He urged the horse into a slow walk that was a challenge in itself. Frick didn't once look back. He disappeared in the darkness and Tonto spoke swiftly.

"Send a man after him, Jess. Just to make sure."

Without orders, a puncher left the group. In a few minutes he followed Frick into the darkness. The group broke up and Tonto went into the bunkhouse. Tex still lay unconscious and Tonto winced at the sight of the battered face. He considered a doctor and then decided against it. The men had already done as much as a doctor could.

Tonto went outside, Jess Ide following him. The older man carefully filled a pipe, struck a match and puffed in a slow and deliberate rhythm. He snapped out the match.

"The boys never liked Frick. They're glad to see him gone. Owen Bradley made a sad mistake. Frick was mean and he had a lot of blow."

Tonto nodded. "Like his threat to come back?"

"That wasn't blow," Jess answered evenly. "Frick'll be back. You can depend on it. I know his kind."

"That's how I see it," Tonto said. "I wanted to make sure you saw it, too. Keep an eye out for him, Jess."

"Me?"

"Sure. You're the segundo of the Slash S. You can move in the cottage tonight. Maybe you'd better let it air until morning, though."

Tonto moved away toward the ranch house. He felt very weary and tired and he thought for a moment how happy he had been when he had come into the yard only a short time before. The change from happiness to killing anger had been too sudden.

Try, Stop Me

The latest wrangle between two radio comics and a columnist, over who "originated" a joke—this one concerned the lady who took such wonderful liver pills that two months after she died, at the ripe age of ninety-seven, they had to beat her liver to death with a stick—was suddenly allowed to subside when one mean old researcher discovered it in a book called "The World of Anecdotes," published in Philadelphia in 1874!

Abraham Lincoln was fond of the story about two Quaker ladies who fell into a discussion concerning himself and Jefferson Davis.

"I think Jefferson will win the war," declared the first Quakeress.

"Why does thee lean to this opinion?"

"Because Jefferson is a praying man." "And so is Abraham a praying man."

"Ah, yes," answered the first. "But the Lord will think Abraham is joking."

Ohio Federated Women's Clubs To Send Navajo Children To Schools

Illiteracy Is High

The 96 junior clubs of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs have been asked by their Indian Affairs chairman, Mrs. Sterling Poling, to raise funds to sponsor ten Navajo children in off reservation boarding schools during the coming club year.

Mrs. Poling in her appeal, which was made in a letter addressed to each club, stressed that while only one Navajo child in four is able to attend school and illiteracy among the Navajo is 80 percent as compared to 1.5 percent among native whites, and that there are hundreds of orphaned or abandoned children whose only opportunity for education comes through sponsorship by club groups and interested individuals.

The local junior club, last year helped to sponsor one child and sent layettes to the reservation. Other clubs throughout the state send children's used clothing, school supplies and Christmas gifts.

Aid to American Indians is only one of the state-wide projects in which the junior clubs participate. Others are saving postage stamps for wounded veterans to aid them in stamp collecting; service in Veterans Hospitals; donating funds to bring a South American student here for study at an Ohio college and establishing a speech correction scholarship fund.

These and other Ohio Federation projects are carried out by the Circleville Junior Women's Club in addition to the many local community service projects which they undertake each year. In her letter to member clubs of the Federation, Mrs. Poling said in part:

"For many of you, these are great days, one of the most important times in your lives because your little boy or girl is starting to school for the first time. For weeks you've been deciding what clothes to buy and have probably purchased a pencil box, crayons and perhaps a school bag or lunch box."

"But for several hundred Navajo mothers and their children the story is different. There will be anticipation and they will go to school, too, but three of every four who go will return home hoping that next year there will be room for them."

"Even more pitiful is the plight of many orphaned or abandoned children. Only through the interest of club women like you can these little ones receive the education they need and want so much."

"School for the Navajo means English; English means a job someday; and a job means food every day and perhaps a window for the hogan in which he lives."

Mrs. Poling continued her letter, describing the Indian hogans which she saw on a visit several months ago to the Indian reservation.

She wrote, "The hogan is built of logs with mud filling the openings and forming the domed roof. There is a hole in the roof through which smoke may pass and a doorway which always faces the rising sun."

The Navajo family never has close neighbors since 26 acres of this arid land are needed to feed one sheep and 250 sheep are considered a bare minimum for subsistence. When the last blade of grass has gone the family will abandon their hogan and move on to a better location—if one can be found."

At the close of her letter Mrs. Poling states, "I know you are interested in helping to alleviate this situation. A check for $96 will make it possible for one child to be clothed and sent to an off-reservation boarding school."

For SURE decorating success!

One application of ONCE-OVER Flat Wall Paint and your decorating job is WELL DONE. We mean over wallpaper OR fresh plaster OR calking OR concrete OR almost any surface you can name.

Johnston ONCE-OVER, famous as "the roller-coater" paint, is not a bubbly, soapy, water-base emulsion, but a true flat genuine oil finish. When applied with lamb's wool roller, results are perfect—and roller NEVER CLOGS in the middle of a job! When applied with brush, ONCE-OVER levels smooth without brush marks.

Absolutely no glare. Dries in one hour. Won't warp or lift wallpaper, self priming. No unpleasant odor. Washes beautifully. If the room is worth decorating at all, it is worth decorating with Johnston ONCE-OVER—available in over 100 smart, new exciting colors, all time-proof.

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

In response to the demand for a more comprehensive form of children's insurance, the Sun Life of Canada announces the new Junior Adjustable Assurance, a policy which:

1. Permits regular small payments which will be greatly to the child's advantage when he reaches 21.
2. Starts assurance coverage at the early ages when the premium is at minimum rates. Premium never increases.
3. Covers expenses incurred through death in childhood.
4. Is flexible, permits a wide choice of valuable options and a considerable increase in face value (actually to five times the original amount) at age 21, without medical examination.
5. Ensures protection should the child later become uninsurable.

Let me show you what this plan can do for your son.

AKRON, Aug. 13 — Wilbur Shaw, famed auto racer who suffered a heart attack before the start of the All-American Soap Box Derby, was reported today to be "slightly improved," but still in serious condition in Akron City Hospital.

The Indianapolis Speedway president, a three-time winner of the annual 500-mile Memorial Day classic, collapsed yesterday. He was slated to referee the race.

While the 49-year-old Shaw was being rushed to the hospital, 15-year-old Darwin Cooper of Danville, Pa., sped his home-made racer to victory, winning a $5,000 college scholarship.

Wilbur Shaw Said Improved

Said Improved

AKRON, Aug. 13 — Wilbur Shaw, famed auto racer who suffered a heart attack before the start of the All-American Soap Box Derby, was reported today to be "slightly improved," but still in serious condition in Akron City Hospital.

The Indianapolis Speedway president, a three-time winner of the annual 500-mile Memorial Day classic, collapsed yesterday. He was slated to referee the race.

While the 49-year-old Shaw was being rushed to the hospital, 15-year-old Darwin Cooper of Danville, Pa., sped his home-made racer to victory, winning a $5,000 college scholarship.

South Team Has Too Much Speed, Wins All-Star Tilt From North

MIDDLETOWN, Aug. 13.—Coach Junie Ferrall of Barberton has three words to explain the 20-7 defeat of his North team in Saturday night's Ohio All-Star football game by a resurgent Southern eleven.

Ferrall says South's school-boy gridders displayed "too much speed" in Middletown's Barnitz Stadium and some 9,500 fans who braved threatening weather are fully in agreement after seeing the rebels' machine-like "T" style of play dominate the sixth Summertime classic.

The South, coached by "single-wing" proponent Chuck Thacker of Hamilton, was everywhere the North squad wasn't Saturday night beginning from the game's second play when Bob Bronston of Springfield raced 73 yards for the initial score.

TDs number two and three came in the third period starting

Indians Take Solid Lead In AL Chase For Pennant

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—The Indians beat out a happy tom-tom solo atop the American League today and the Yankees beat their heads against anything solid they could find.

Performance and time were the factors which gave the Indians a one-and-one-half game edge in the standings over the world champions. The Indians, with Mike Garcia hurling a superb game, mowed down the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 1, yesterday for their tenth straight.

And the Yankees, well, they got hit by a Mack truck as they blew a doubleheader to the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 5 and 7 to 4.

A dismal home stand ended on a happy note for the Boston Red Sox. The Sox swept a pair from the Washington Senators by 6-to-2 scores to finish their current Fenway Park stay with an 11-10 record.

Hoot Evers singled with the bases loaded to break a 1-1 tie in the ninth inning and enable the Detroit Tigers to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1.

THREE PITCHERS in the National League notched their sixteenth win of the campaign. Don Newcombe of the Dodgers, Sal Maglie of the Giants and Murry Dickson of the Pirates all reached the three-quarter pole in the race for the 20-game circle.

Newcombe got his as the run-

Phelan To Pilot Football Yanks

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 — Jim Phelan takes over today as coach of the New York Yanks in the National Football League.

Phelan, appointed yesterday by Owner Ted Collins, is scheduled to arrive at the Yank training camp in Ripon, Wis.

Phelan, who coached the Los Angeles Dons in the defunct All-America Conference for one season, succeeds Red Strader, who left the Yanks earlier in the week. Strader said he was fired. Collins insisted Strader left on his own accord.

Sokolsky's These Days

If cadets are "assisted" the record is inaccurate. That assistance, on the other hand, may result in better men being kept lower on the list because they do not play football. It means that the standing of these soldiers and gentlemen is false. If the West Point records are falsified, we do not know any longer what kind of officer material is coming out of that school; we have no measure to decide whether it is safe to entrust them with the responsibilities for which they receive special training at the taxpayers' expense.

This, it seems to me, is the heart of the problem. A full and serious congressional investigation needs to be made of the entire situation, in a broad spirit, without regard to individuals.

West Point is either a school for military officers and gentlemen or it is a show place which Billy Rose might manage and save the taxpayer the cost. And these criteria could with advantage be applied to many prep schools, colleges, and universities. Perhaps some day, in their search for advertising methods, to raise funds, or to attract attention, schools will hire a corps of showgirls to put on an

Millionaire 4-Year Soph Is Given Boot

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 13 —There was weeping and gnashing of teeth among Bridgeport university coeds today, but school officials insist that four years as a sophomore is too long for any student, even a Latin-American millionaire.

Handsome Ramon Font-Feliza, 22-year-old son of a Car-cas oil man, was quite the rage among coeds, shop girls and professor's wives.

His hand-kissing and courtly Latin manners, his expertness at the rumba and mambo, his free-spending champagne parties in Bridgeport night clubs—all endeared Ramon to those who knew him.

His two shiny convertibles and his willingness to lend a few dollars to fraternity brothers at Phi Omega Chi further increased his reputation as a "BMOG"—big man on campus.

But the handsome senior simply did not pass his academic courses.

He received the word of his dismissal with typical Latin gallantry, saying:

"One thing I can always say, they loved me in Bridgeport."

Local Legion Gets Drum Corps Prize, Special Citation

Ohio Parley Is Held In Columbus

Ex-Marine Gives Tough Inspection

Circleville Legion Drum and Bugle Corp placed fifth in competition held at Central high school field, Columbus, as a feature of the Department of Ohio 33rd annual convention of the American Legion.

When points were counted by the inspecting officer and the American Judges Association members the local unit had a score of 74.80 against 88.53, the score for the outfit which won the state championship, the Drum and Bugle Corp of Elyria.

Circleville received the fifth prize of $150.

The Elyria corp was resplendent in a color scheme of gold and white. The unit has approximately 50 members and is headed by a beautiful horse which was led in the lobby of the hotel headquarters followed by the corps in white uniforms.

Saturday afternoon, the local aggregation stood a rigid inspection in front of the state house, where William Jarvey, former Marine officer, gave them an examination.

THIS INCLUDED such points as shoes not shined, heels run over, lint on uniforms, collar wings not in place, ravelings of thread left where stitching on uniform ended, markings on drums, dust on drum heads and cleanliness of bugles.

The group's next important engagement will be an appearance in the same type of work with military drum and bugle corps from over the state who have been engaged for a similar competition, to be presented at the Ohio State Fair.

It was announced Sunday morning at the convention that Circleville had received honorable mention with two other posts in the State for its participation in work that affected the community.

The local post received this award when points were checked in their activities which included donations to civic welfare organizations, highway patrol auxiliary work,

March of Dimes collection by the drum and bugle corps, toy distribution at the Christmas holidays and distribution of wheel chairs and hospital beds to needy residents of the county.

There are over 700 posts in the state and the Alice Friedman Memorial trophy was presented for this work to the Legion post of Gallon.

The band of Portage post of Kent, which won the state Legion band championship for the sixth year in succession Saturday night, headed the musical outfits in the colorful parade.

CLARENCE White myer of Louisville, a bailiff in Stark County common pleas court, was elected commander prior to the parade without opposition. He is a member of Canton post.

Other officers elected by roll-call vote—used for the last time as the delegates authorized the executive committee to find some faster means of balloting—were:

W. O. McClellan of Elyria, first vice-commander; Howard C. Kingdom of Conneaut, second vice-commander; Rev. Paul H. Cramer of Bluffton, chaplain; and James Wagonseller of Lancaster, treasurer.

Joseph T. Kenny of Springfield was elected grand chief de gare of the 40 Et 8, the legion's fun-making adjunct, and Mrs. Arthur T. Palmer of Columbus was selected as the auxiliary's commander.

State Liquor Director William

C. Bryant was named by White-myer to be department judge advocate.

Other auxiliary officers are Mrs. Charles McNeil, Toledo, first vice-president; Mrs. Linus Schmelzer, Delphos, second vice-president, and Mrs. Lester Ninton, Canton, treasurer.

The auxiliary voted to move its headquarters from Zanesville to Columbus, Columbus was chosen again as the convention city for next year—the ninth straight time the conclave will be held in the capital.

THE LEGION earlier took formal action urging schools throughout the state to ban textbooks written by a Columbia university professor.

In a resolution, Legionnaires charged Dr. Harold G. Rugg of Columbia authored textbooks which advocated "a socialistic government" for the United States.

The Legion also took stands against draft deferments for college students and called upon the state insurance division to clamp down on the International Workers Order, a national insurance firm.

Congress was called upon to rescind the student deferment section of the draft on the grounds the program was "class discrimination" which might cause class hatred and "weaken the morale of those being drafted."

The resolution aimed at the international Workers Order said New York supreme court ordered the firm dissolved because it aided in distributing Communist literature and planned to "serve in place of the Communist Party if the party was declared illegal."

The Legionnaires also went on record as opposing "any cooperative international action" by which the United States would yield some sovereignty.

Legislation aimed at further curbing narcotics was fully endorsed by the Legion and Gen.

Douglas MacArthur was extended thanks for efforts to "preserve our nation."

Without his knowledge or consent, Patrick Henry was proposed as a dictator of Virginia.
